Snow on Way, Traffic Tangle

Two snowstorms were expected to converge on this area late today, bringing Boston only an inch of accumulation but due to be followed by a cold wave with near or sub-zero temperatures tomorrow night, the mercury dropping to 20 in the city and 15 in the suburbs tonight.

Boston's street car service was hampered by the fact many cars were still disabled at the rush hour this morning as result of yesterday's storm, while railroads faced a critical freight problem.

Carload lots of freight clutter railroad yards because private sidings of consignees are blocked with snow.

Passenger service on the Saugus and Medford branches of the Boston & Maine, suspended last night, will remain in that status until further notice, officials announced. A railroad plow assigned to the Saugus branch during the night was derailed at Cliftondale by ice and snow. A wrecker sent to get it on the rails again was blocked by snow at highway crossings.

The B. & M. said it was "besieged" with calls from freight train crews reporting derailments.

PLOW DERAILED

A railroad plow was derailed in Winchester near Wedgemere but a wrecking crew got it back on the tracks before morning commuter service began.

The forecast of a cold wave confronted railroad men with what they frankly said they "feared most"—a freeze before tracks can be cleared of slush and water.

Traffic problems were intensified in South Boston this morning when pilings of the L st. bridge were discovered afire. The blaze caused negligible damage but traffic was blocked for an hour.

Police continued their drive to get parked automobiles out of the way so fire apparatus and ambulances might not be held up. The traffic division issued 700 tags, police in Brighton had tagged 435 cars and towed away 103 in the past three days, the Roxbury Crossing division tagged 400 yesterday and the drive on Beacon Hill parkers was intensified.

Metropolitan facilities were taxed considerably as thousands of workers found the Met their only means of getting to work this morning.

A survey of the Met's street car terminals showed only 14 cars in operation out of 63 at the East Boston yard, 27 operating out of 97 at Fields Corner, 103 running out of 231 at the Arborway and 18 in commission out of 60 at Revere.

STAY OFF CARS

So serious was the Greater Boston transportation jam that officials of the Met issued a special bulletin early today pointing to the crippling effects of the storm and urging the riding public to stay off cars on rush hours wherever possible.

The Met said its service would be severely crippled in car lines in Revere, East Boston, Dorchester and Roxbury. Later, the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway announced that storm damage would reduce its service in Woburn, Reading and Malden.

Highways in Massachusetts, westward to the Berkshires, were coated with ice formed by the rainfall that covered the area in the wake of two to five inches of fresh snow. Rain followed the snow in most of southern New England and along the coast to Portland, Me.

The Boston public works department sent out 1500 men with picks and shovels today to tackle streets with ruts often a foot deep. Plows worked through the night to push as much of the slush as possible off roadways narrowed to a scant two-car width.

Just by way of disagreeable statistics, the weather bureau announced that the total of the seven storms this winter, beginning Dec. 24, is 49.4 inches. In 56 of the past 75 years, this total has not been equalled and in only 19 winters has it been exceeded.

Thousands of motorists left cars at home and traveled by train, bus and street cars throwing heavy loads on all lines.

On Monday and Tuesday, the M.T.A. carried an average of nearly 100,000 more passengers than in the same two days of last year, Dana said. He asked car riders to co-operate with the road and ride in other than peak hours if they can.

Father Dies, Son Burned Rescuing 4

FITCHBURG, Jan. 22—Desire St. Martin, 72, was dead, his wife, son, two grandchildren and a cousin hospitalized, and the St. Martin cottage in Rice ave., destroyed, as the result of a fire in which the son was badly burned while rescuing others of the family.

The younger St. Martin, Edward, 32, is in Burbank Hospital with his mother, Julia, 72; his sons, George, 14, and Ernest, 13, and William O'Malley, 25, of Clinton, the cousin, none critically injured.

Edward lifted his mother out a front window, near which she was found unconscious in a snowbank when firemen arrived. He suffered first and second degree burns in rescuing her and his sons. The elder St. Martin was cut down by flames 15 feet inside the front door.

The Weather

LOCAL—Cloudy tonight with occasional light snow this afternoon and again tonight. Colder tonight with lowest temperatures about 20 in downtown Boston and about 15 in interior suburbs. All-Out Fight Rages In Tel Aviv Suburb

JERUSALEM, Jan. 22 (INS)—Attacks from ambush by both Arabs and Jews on the outskirts of Tel Aviv caused more than a score of deaths today and resulted in a pitched battle between an estimated 900 Arabs and Jews in the village of Yazur.

In Tel Aviv proper a mob lynched a Christian Pole who was suspected of being a spy for the Arabs.

Yazur was transformed into a battlefield when both sides brought up reinforcements following an exchange of attacks on Jewish and Arab transport.

The Tel Aviv lynching brought to 24 the total of known deaths in new outbursts of violence so far today.

GI War Bride, Jap Artist Die In Poison Pact

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 22 (INS)—The U. S. Eighth Army announced today that the wife of an American soldier and a Japanese man took poison together and died Tuesday night at Yokohama.

The Army said the woman, an Australian by birth but an American dependent in Japan, and the Japanese were found dying at a Yokohama railroad station.

The woman was identified as Mrs. Leonard R. Lorance, wife of an Olympia, Wash., soldier who is a master sergeant in the Occupation Army. She was the mother of a three-year-old son.

The Australian mission in Tokyo said Mrs. Lorance was a native of New South Wales and that her maiden name was Wynne.

New Snowstorm, Fog Darken New York City

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—Strips of near midnight darkness settled over New York in midforenoon today as a new snowstorm swirled onto the weather-battered city.

Lights gleamed in skyscrapers in some sections while other areas were normally clear. The weather bureau said a combination of snow and fog caused the phenomenon.

As the darkness passed and light came again like delayed dawn, snow fell with growing intensity.

The weather bureau said the storm, moving in from eastern Pennsylvania, would continue until late afternoon, leaving two inches or more. The metropolitan area still is banked with snow from the Dec. 26 fall of 25.8 inches.

2d Triple Slaying In Day Stirs Maine

COLUMBIA, Me., Jan. 22—A Bangor man, suddenly going berserk, shot and killed his stepdaughter and her grandfather today, then took his own life with a 30-30 rifle before the eyes of horrified relatives. Dead in the triple killing, the second in Maine in less than 24 hours, were Harley Worcester, 70; Mrs. Glenis Ellingwood, mother of an infant and granddaughter of Worcester's late second wife, and Charles Drinkwater, 55, of Bangor, stepfather o fthe slain woman.

State Trooper Maynard Lindsey, calle dto the house by one of the relatives, was shot and wounded in the right arm by Drinkwater before the latter killed himself.

In the house at the time of the shooting were Brs. Alice Drinkwater, wife of the killer and mother of Mrs. Ellingwood, and Harry Ellingwood, Navy veteran and husband of the slain woman.

Ellingwood, when he saw Drinkwater shoot and kill his wife and the elderly man, ran to a neighbor's home and telephoned the police.

Lndsey, the first to respond to the call, was shot as he stpped from his car in front of the Worcester home.

Other officers surrounded the house and sent to Bangor for tear gas to rout Drinkwater from the building.

But, before the gas arrived, he turned the gun on himself and took his life.

Sheriff Raymond Foster, who is investigating the case, said he had not yet determined the motive in the shooting but added that Drinkwater apparently had gone berserk.

Girl, 10, Sees Father Kill Aunt, Mother Before Suicide in Well

TOPSHAM, Me., Jan. 22—A pretty little 10-year-old girl early today sobbed out the tragic story of how, before her eyes, her father shot to death her mother and seconds later her aunt before finally taking his own life. The girl, Jeanette Russell, told the story of the double gun-slaying to Police Chief Frank Carver and State Trooper George Buzzell.

"Just after supper my father came to our door waving a gun and screaming. He smashed the gun through the glass of a kitchen door and shot my mother in the side. He then put his hand through the broken glass and unlatched the door.

"My aunt rushed over to try and stop him but he brushed her aside and followed my mother into a bedroom where she had run clutching her side.

"He shouted at her again and when she threw herself across the bed, he fired three shots into her body.

"My aunt then ran through the door out into the snow. My father turned around and chased her. He fired the revolver twice and I saw her fall. My father kept running, slipping and falling every few steps in the deep snow.

"I was huddled in a corner of the room with my cousins, Beverly Frances and Joyce, afraid to move.

"The next thing I knew, the neighbors next door came in our house and took us away. I later found out that my father had jumped into the well across the street."

Her father, Edward Russell, 42, Old Lewiston rd., immediately after shooting his wife, Mabel, 30, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Crosman, 31, ran across the street to his own home and plunged into an 18-foot well. His body was recovered early today from the well.

Police Chief Carver said Russell's wife had been living with her sister-in-law, across the street from the Russell home, along with Jeanette and Mrs. Crosman's three children, Beverly, 10; Frances, 9, and Joyce, 5.

Carver said Mrs. Russell had left her husband because she wished to divorce him. She filed divorce papers last Monday, he said.

Officials said the double murder and suicide had been brought about by nights and days of brooding over marital troubles. A week ago, Russell lost his job in the fabricating department of the Bath Iron Works.

Russell's father said his son would sit up night after night sitting at the window watching the Crosman home across the road, hoping his wife would return to him.

Jeanette and the three Crosman children are being cared for by Mrs. Crosman's mother and father.

CHARACTER STUDIES AFTER CUSTODY SUIT—Mrs. Beverly Smith (left), aunt of 11-year-old Richard Girod, weeps unrestrainedly after Los Angeles court decision gave custody of the boy to his mother, Mrs. Janet Hill, who embraces him happily at right. The court permitted the lad to make his own choice. Mrs. Smith had cared for Richard since 1945 when Mrs. Hill, her sister, said she was unable to keep him.

U. S. Hits Russia Body Blow In Baring 4-Power Axis Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The U. S. uncorked a major propaganda blow against Russia today by officially revealing a Soviet offer in 1940 to join the German-Italian-Japanese Axis at a price Adolf Hitler refused to pay.

Already the government's information mouthpiece to the world, the "Voice of America" shortwave radio, is pouring into Russia and the rest of Europe the factual story told in a fat volume of long-secret German Foreign Office records suddenly published by the State Dept.

The book's 362 pages disclose the minutest details of the two-year Moscow-Berlin honeymoon which began when the men who now rule Russia negotiated a non-aggression pact with Hitler and which ended with Hitler's treacherous attack on the Soviet Union June 22, 1941.

It gives the word-by-word deals which led to the 1939 friendship treaty as well as the texts of the then top secret additions under which Germany and the Soviet Union carved Poland and north-eastern Europe into spheres of influence or outright control.

And it tells how Premier Stalin demanded, without even getting an answer, a free hand in Finland, a military base near the Dardanelles and a dominant voice in the oil-rich Middle East in return for a four-power Axis.

The State Dept. volume was published after months of discussion among top officials here as to what disposition should be made of the documents captured by American forces when Berlin fell and which Russia fought successfully to exclude from the Nuernberg war crimes trial.

Originally, it was announced these and a great mass of other captured records would be published by common agreement among the U. S., Britain and France in a series of books giving a total picture of Hitler's international intrigues. But this plan was changed drastically and swiftly to provide for selective publication of the papers bearing on German-Russian relations alone.

SIGNALS CHANGED

State Dept. officials now give the formal explanation that they changed signals after being pressed with demands from both scholars and correspondents for the documents. They also say that much of the information was gradually leaking out anyway.

Among informed authorities, however, there is no doubt that the personal decision of State Sec. Marshall for publication now was made in the light of the intensified propaganda campaign which the Soviet Union has been waging against the U. S.

Vermont Girl, Man in Tryst Die of Fumes

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Jan. 22—Police and health authorities disclosed today that gas poisoning caused the deaths of a red-headed girl of 22 and a 30-year-old man whose partially disrobed bodies were found in a room of a gas storage tank here.

They were found locked in a death embrace. Gas poisoning was given as the cause of death by Dr. Oscar A. Burton, health officer, who added that he believed the bodies might have been there two days.

Victims of the double tragedy were Miss Etta Atherton, a domestic employed in nearby Wilmington, and Guy M. Way of Brattleboro.

Way, who, worked for an organ company, was married and had one child. He moved here from North Hero in 1945.

Elmer Clark, an employe of the Central Vermont Public Service Corp. discovered the bodies when he was making a periodic check of the tanks. He described them as being frozen like "human statues."

Police Chief Joseph S. Holiday said he believed the couple had gone into the secluded room unaware it was the drip room of a gas storage tank, containing strong residue fumes.

Horner Girl Writes Dirge of Life As Sheltered Piano Prodigy

Special to the Boston Evening American

An amazing story of rebellion against the life of a child musical prodigy and her transition from that cloistered existence to a footloose barfly was unfolded today by Jacqueline Horner, 14. Here is her story, as told to a San Francisco Examiner staff writer.

By JACQUELINE HORNER

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22—I just wanted out! Do you know what it means, being a child piano prodigy? It means they never let me play with other youngsters because I might hurt my hands. It means never going swimming, because they thought the water would injure my ears and spoil my sense of musical hearing.

It means being trained, practicing eight hours a day and exhibited, like a circus animal.

It means keeping you in "little girl" dresses, to keep you a "child" prodigy. It means size 14—in the children's dress department.

Since I've been 5, I've lived this smothered in cotton-wool existence.

I started playing the piano at five. Within six months, I gave my first recital. At seven, I played my first concert with an orchestra. At eight, I was playing with the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Before I was 10, I was in the movies, at MGM. At 11, I toured the road in a stage play called "Cross-Roads." Two years ago, I was in a Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur play, "Swan Song," on Broadway.

Grownups were my only companions. For me, there was no going to school; no playing and mingling with youngsters my age. I always had private tutors.

I wanted out . . . I wanted some fun.

On Tuesday, Jan. 13, I left my Los Angeles home, supposedly to go to my private tutor.

I never went there. I was wearing one of my size 14, children's department little girl dresses. But with me I carried a package—a grownup woman's sweater and skirt. My sister Adele, who works for a San Francisco broadcasting company, had sent it to me.

From my house, I went to a gas station, and into the ladies' rest room, where I changed into the skirt and sweater.

I knew where I was going—to San Francisco. I had no money, but I got some, pronto. I pawned a valuable pin, got $20 for it.

I hated to part with it. It had been given to me by Helen Hayes, on the opening night of that Broadway play, "Swan Song." Her husband, Charles MacArthur, was one of the co-authors.

The bus to San Francisco traveled via Fresno, and there Gloria Jean Costello boarded the bus. On the way up to San Francisco she struck up an acquaintance with me.

By the time we reached San Francisco we were good friends. On leaving the bus, we registered together at a Howard st. hotel—I under the name of Dianna Arlington.

So I wouldn't be recognized by the police, I had my brown hair tinted reddish. From my ordinarily plain, little girl hairdo, I changed it into an upswept coiffure.

I decided to pal around with Gloria Jean Costello for a while. I arrived in San Francisco with only $1, and had to pawn my wristwatch for $12. It didn't last long.

Then the problem was how to get some more money so we'd go into bars. Those dim-lighted, dismal places, with men with hungry eyes staring at you—ugh! It gave me the willies.

I was told to get in league with bartenders, and help get likely looking men with a lot of money drunk. I couldn't, though.

It meant talking to some man; as he got progressively drunker, he'd be charged $3 for a 50-cent drink, until all his money was gone. Then the bartender would split with you.

But I couldn't do it.

But I did spend time in the bars, talking to sailors. They were gay and fun. I didn't do any drinking.

I guess the reason I took up with sailors was that they would buy your meals.

I broke off with Gloria Jean Costello after a spat last Sunday. The night before we had registered at another hotel—I didn't want the police to find me and return me home.

Two sailors were up in the room that night. But I did nothing wrong. All the while I was in San Francisco, I did nothing wrong.

Monday night, I registered at another hotel with that sailor, Wallace Lee Wells. He's a nice boy. We registered as brother and sister, and had different rooms.

I met him last Friday, and he took me to see his father here. Then, late Tuesday night, the police came to my hotel room.

And now here I am, at the juvenile detention home.

But I'm not a bad girl.

I guess I've shown them that I'm out of the size 14 children's department dress stage.

Ship Sails Minus 2 Theft Suspects

The British ship, SS Ft. Spokane, will said from Pier 3 today without two of its crewmen, Samuel Turner, 21, and George Martin, 24, both from Belfast, Irsland.

Turner and Martin, arrested at gunpoint at 1:20 a. m. in the Robinson Jewelry Co., Washington st., each were held in $5000 for the grand jury after pleading not guilty before Judge Zottoli to charges of breaking and entering with attempt to commit larceny.

Turner, as spokesman for himself and his crewmate, told Judge Zottoli:

"We were going back to our ship when we heard a crash of glass. Then a fellow hits me on the jaw and knocks me into the store. Just as I'm picking myself up, the police come in. The three other fellows ran away."

"That's the truth, Your Honor," interposed Martin.

His Honor, however, said:

"I guess you'll have to tell that story to a jury."

Dollars, Sense Keynote Spring Fashion Parade

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston American Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—The American way of life gave fashion an A-plus rating in democracy with the presentation of the first "pop" or piggy-bank fashion show in the Waldorf Astoria ballroom. Each of the more than 200 trend-influenced examples of New York fashions modeled bore a price tag of $25 or less.

Here was a show that made dollars and sense.

As the commentator pointed out, Mrs. Van Swashbuckling may consider it "Communism" that 92 per cent of American women whose purses don't bulge with greenbacks can look as smart and fashionable as the remaining eight per cent who buy in the higher price brackets.

The showing opened with a color film which faded in on the living room in an average American home. The young wife is dismayed at the high prices she sees as she looks over the fashion advertisement.

But she is in for a surprise. Leafing through a fashion magazine, she stops suddenly, in amazement, when some of the pages "come to life," the mannequins wearing expensive-looking clothes that turn out to be astonishingly low-priced.

ACCENT STYLE TREND

The costumes that came to life on the runway were selected for their trend value as well as price.

One was a navy wool crepe bolero suit combining a one-piece dress with elongated navy, white and red-striped crepe bodice tied in a big pouf bow at the hip. Another was an apricot-colored wool suit-dress, the hip-length fitted jacket designed with petal-peplum front, and the skirt slightly flared.

A pure silk shantung dress in kingfisher blue, a "sensational" value at $25, was styled all of a piece with the double-breasted bodice fastened with self-fabric buttons, and the skirt with big patch pockets on the sides. Navy gabardine was seen in a youthful drum major suit, so called for the style of the brief jacket, with very full skirt.

This season's popular shirtwaist dress was represented in gray rayon gabardine with long Gibson girl sleeves, soft rounded collar and tiny silver buttons fastening the front of the bodice.

The evening dress chosen was designed in taffeta in spring's popular mauve shade, with strapless boned bodice cuffed across the top, and full skirt corded in rows above the hem.

With Easter about two months away, almost every woman is concerned about what she will have to pay to look fashionably fine in the traditional parade.

While the cost of clothes has mounted simultaneously with other commodities, fashion has dug into the value barrel to justify its estimated rise of about 15 to 35 per cent.

DUE IN HUB SOON

The clothes shown at this fashion parade will be in Boston stores in a few weeks.

The good shopper will note that seam detail that shapes the garment and holds it together will stand up well under close inspection; that hems are generous and the "hang" is right.

In the $25 or less group there were these fine examples: A supple navy wool crepe suit with short jacket, flare skirt and white pique collar buttoning on beneath the wool collar.

Another is a gray menswear with fine red and white stripe, jacket fastening diagonally with silver buttons over an almost straight skirt.

Still another was made of graph sheet plaid . . . fine rust and blue lines on beige . . . in an alpaca-like weave, with bracelet sleeves, and a wide four-gored skirt.

A cocoa gabardine suit with short belted-in jacket and flared skirt amazed the nation's fashion press with its expensive look. Also, a black faille suit for the more mature woman, with a set-in belt, gold buttons and a four-gored skirt with a modified flare.

CAPELET TOUTED

This is being touted a bolero and capelet spring and the budget-priced makers of clothes had their contribution to make to the new fashion trend.

A gray alpaca-like rayon princess dress with concealed button front, had a detachable shoulder cape lined with red and white polka dot crepe. A navy sheer crepe skirt and bolero with navy and rose print crepe blouse was another winner.

Also a white serge-weave bolero suit with navy and white polka dot dickey, cummerbund, collar and cuffs, its four-gored skirt flared. A yellow spun linen suit with collarless bolero over a gay plaid gingham blouse featured loose three-quarter sleeves showing the long bloused gingham sleeves below.

Most of the American feminine public has gone petticoat pretty. This trend was also incorporated. One dark navy sheer with a double yoke making a sort of turtle neck rustled over a red plaid taffeta petticoat.

PETTICOAT FLOUNCE

A black taffeta with snug bodice and full gathered skirt had a red embroidered band above a red pleated petticoat flounce. A navy and white checked taffeta petticoat and ruffle cuffs enhanced a navy sheer crepe redingote princess dress with patch pockets.

For the shirtwaist look there was a mustard-color shantung "Sunday" dress designed all of a piece with unpressed pleats giving six skirt fullness, the bodice styled with high, small-collared neckline and cuffed, below-elbow sleeves. A gold kid belt narrowed the waistline. Chambray was featured repeatedly, a smart fabric for warm weather.

'Fagin' Planned Killing Youth Says

A 16-year-old Peabody youth, one of three youngsters who pleaded guilty to the armed robbery of an 83-year-old man, today accused the 42-year-old Danvers woman, allegedly the Fagin of the strange crime ring, of wanting to hire somebody to kill her husband so she could collect his insurance.

The charge was made against Mrs. Lucile E. Bean, 42, Cherry st., Danvers, former Boston secretarial school teacher, by Harold L. Lyons, 16, ashington st., Peabody, testifying in Salem Superior Court before Judge Pinanski.

Mrs. Bean, whose husband is a travel agent in Boston, is defending herself against the charge of armed robbery of $200 from Arthur W. Lawton, 83, Pickering ct., Danvers.

Lyons was joined in his guilty plea by Richard L. Coady, Gardner st., Peabody, and Lucy Stone, 17, Essex st., Danvers.

Mrs. Bean, mother of an 18-year-old son, revealed her desire to have her husband killed, Lyons testified, while all four were driving to Lynn, where the woman was to pawn some jewelry. That was just before the Lawton robbery, he said.

Other plans she spoke of on that ride, Lyons went on, included robbery of the Telepix Theater in Boston and rifling cash registers in department stores while posing as a saleswoman.

Testimony was offered that the woman and three youngsters drove to Boston after the Lawton holdup so that Mrs. Bean could show Coady the layout at the Telepix Theater, then the group drove to Lynn and split up, with the Stone girl and Lyons driving home.

Blood Donor Clinic At Temple Ohabei Shalom

A blood donor clinic for the State Public Health Dept. will be held at Temple Ohabei Shalom in Beacon st., Brookline, Monday under sponsorship of the Brotherhood and Sisterhood organizations of the Temple.

Donors will include Rabbi Dudley Weinberg and Cantor Alfred Rospash of the Temple and Mrs. Albert Fishel of Netherlands rd., who gave 34 pints of blood during the war to the Red Cross. More than 100 have already signed up as donors.

Male Rush to Beauty Salons Spurs New Law

PLANDOME, N. Y., Jan. 22 (AP)—So many men are patronizing beauty shops that a lady legislator plans to reword the State law to cope with the male demand for permanent waves, hair dyes and other beauty jobs.

The present statute on beauty parlors regulates persons working on "female heads." Assemblywoman Genesta M. Strong said yesterday she would seek to have it amended to read "human heads."

CHINA AIR CRASH TOLL 10

SHANGHAI, Jan. 22 (AP)—The death count in a Chinese transport plane crash at Mukden Tuesday rose from seven to 10 today as another body was found in the wreckage and two passengers died in a hospital.

Laraine Divorce Due, Nuptials Also

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22 (AP) —A final divorce decree for Laraine Day was on the court calendar for today, and friends expected it would be followed almost immediately by another wedding ceremony for the actress and Leo Durocher.

Miss Day obtained an interlocutory decree from Ray Hendricks, an airplane parts salesman, Jan. 20, 1947, and a day later flew to Mexico, where she got another divorce and was married to the Brooklyn baseball manager.

The actress said a month ago that she and Durocher had set today as the date for a second ceremony after her California decree became final. Durocher is due to leave for New York next weekend on business.

Hartley Backs Petrillo On Record Making Poll

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (INS) —Rep. Hartley (R.) of New Jersey, announced today he is adopting James C. Petrillo's proposal a secret poll be taken of the nation's record-making musicians to determine whether they favor continuing Petrillo's ban on the making of records.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1948, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

EDWARD J. FLYNN, OF THE BRONX, produced in his book, "You're the Boss," an outstanding sociological study of American life. No college professor could have had as intimate a view of the actual operations of our political system. I quote the following paragraph from Flynn's book:

"One of the main reasons for Willkie's defeat was the lack of support given him by the regular Republican organizations. The organizations certainly did not want him to be nominated. He overwhelmed them in Philadelphia.

"Unquestionably they left the convention with no kindly spirit toward their candidate. This feeling got worse, aggravated by the fact that Willkie took every opportunity he could to insult directly or indirectly the politicians in the Republican party . . ."

Wendell Willkie could have been elected in 1940. Flynn comes pretty close to admitting that and I am sure that Jim Farley, when his full book appears, will come close to admitting it.

Willkie was originally projected by a group of businessmen associated with the National Association of Manufactures who were seeking someone to out-glamour Roosevelt.

Long before the convention, he was invited to address the N. A. M. big dinner at the Waldorf Asteria. They saw a chance of defeating Roosevelt. There was money to burn. I know this situation intimately and directly because I was then associated with the N. A. M.

THE REPUBLICAN politicians did not want Willkie. There were two reasons: 1—He was not a Republican. He had been a Democrat, actually a member of Tammany Hall; 2—They regarded him as the businessman's lawyer, not as a leader of their party.

Flynn is correct, but he understates the situation: it is not only that the regular Republican organizations failed to support Willkie; they actually voted against him.

I traveled from one end of the country to the other in that campaign, stumping for the Republican Party. I wrote on Nov. 8, 1940:

". . . I found that Republican leaders and workers were without contact often even with the officers of the party. There was discouragement, resentment and disappointment. A campaign is not a crusade and it is won not by noise in unison but by enthusiastic and co-ordinated competence. The latter was lacking throughout."

THE MAJOR political parties of this country are not membership organizations, but they consist of a large body of local workers who are often associated in local clubs. These are controlled by district leaders who, in turn, are controlled by county leaders.

The really effective political agents are the county leaders. They make or break candidates. They are strictly organization men. They prefer organization men.

Of the many Republican candidates, three are strictly organization men, Robert A. Taft, Thomas E. Dewey and Joseph Martin, Jr. Stassen is an organization Republican but he is not really a candidate.

Eisenhower is a rank outsider, projected by such outsiders as Thomas Watson of the International Business Machines Corporation, and Joseph E. Davies, Mr. Roosevelt's mission to Moscow. The manager of the draft Eisenhower movement, Stuart Scheftel, is a youngish man who has been all over the map, supporting independent movements in the Republican party but rarely a regular.

His over-anxiety to achieve political leadership quickly and without practiced experience has made of a maverick a mugwump.

DEWEY'S ANNOUNCEMENT of his candidacy, while late, relieved the atmosphere in New York. As long as he did not announce, candidates were playing for some votes in the New York delegation. From now on that delegation, which has not yet been chosen, will be a unit. And that unit will be for Dewey.

In fact, one of Dewey's managers is Edwin F. Jaeckle, who, dissatisfied after the 1944 campaign, has now returned to the fold. He is the Republican boss of Buffalo, the city in which General "Wild Bill" Donovan, of the Eisenhower boom, may claim some political support.

The Republican party will resist being raided by outsiders in 1948. Most of the delegates will be organization men who want a Republican candidate, by which they will mean one who has been a Republican in the foul years between 1932 and 1946 as well as in the hopeful year when Wallace produces a third party to help out.

Hearst History Test Results Due Sunday

By JIM MORTON

Special to the Boston American

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Headed by noted Author Frank Monaghan, a committee of Freedom Train historians finished grading the examination papers of boys and girls bidding for the annual Hearst American history awards.

Winners of the $5850 in prize money, including the $2000 top award, will be announced Sunday.

The Hearst competition ended last month with a final examination held in New York and 12 other key centers of the nation.

In its fifth year the classic drew a record entry of more than 1000 high schools, 154 of which were in the New York area. Tens of thousands of teen-aged students competed.

IMPARTIALITY ASSURED

The tests and essays of the finalists were mailed from all parts of the country to the judges' committee. As a measure of complete impartiality, all identity as to the name, school and region of the contestants was omitted from the papers.

Serving with Dr. Monaghan are Dr. Julian P. Boyd, Princeton University archivist, and Dr. S. K. Stevens, state historian of Pennsylvania.

This group prepared the Freedom Train exhibit which has thrilled more than a million Americans.

In reviewing the Hearst tests the historians found the principal stumbling block was the question dealing with The Bill of Rights.

STUMBLING BLOCK

"Most students were familiar with its broad concepts but, surprisingly, enough missed the point on some of those priceless individual liberties which the first 10 amendments guarantee," Dr. Monaghan said.

Besides the $2000 grand prize, awards will be made as follows: $1000 second; $500, third; $250, fourth; $100, fifth to ninth; $50, 10th to 41st, all in government bonds. A total of $5850.

Council Approval Of Judge Brooks Seen on 3d Vote

Although the Executive Council has twice held up confirmation of Judge Lawrence G. Brooks' nomination as presiding justice of Malden District Court, following charges he was affiliated with groups listed in Washington as Communist Fronts, it was indicated today the Council will vote approval at next Wednesday's session.

Councilor John S. Ames, Jr., of Easton, who joined four others in a 5-4 vote to postpone action, said he was "almost willing to predict" he would vote for approval next week.

Judge Brooks spoke freely of his appearance before a Council committee at which he defended his membership in the local groups of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee. Both have been labelled subversive by Atty. Gen. Clark.

"My position so far as these two organizations are concerned," Judge Brooks said after the meeting, "is that so long as the local groups are not subject to criticism, no adverse inference should be drawn from my sponsoring the local groups.

"My only interest in the American-Soviet Friendship group is to maintain avenues of approach to Russia so long as possible in order to minimize the danger of a third world war. I am thoroughly fed up with Communist tactics."

New Sugar May Halt Tooth Decay

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—A rare sugar that shows some indication of being able to stop tooth decay is to be tested in the next few months in rat experiments at the Harvard School of Dental Medicine by Dr. James H. Shaw.

The sugar is glyceric aldehyde, so rare that only about two pounds of it are known to exist in the world, says Dr. Robert C. Hockett, scientific director of sugar research foundation.

In test-tube experiments at Northwestern University Dental School, Dr. Leonard S. Fosdick found the rare sugar to a great extent prevented the fermentation of common sugar by bacteria in the mouth.

Checks Pour in To Rebuild Church

Following Archbishop Cushing's gift of $25,000 to help rebuild the destroyed Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, hundreds of checks and money gifts were received today by the pastor, Rev. Irving L. Gifford, D.D.

Donating $5000 himself, Rev. Dr. Gifford announced that Sunday masses would be held in the gymnasium of the North Quincy High School at 7, 8, 9 (two masses), 10:30 and 11:30 (two masses).

Meanwhile the 8-year-old Weymouth boy who admitted starting the fire because he liked "to see fire engines come" was committed to the Metropolitan State Hospital for a 40-day observation period.

Police Save Two Victims Of Snowplow Fumes

Two workmen were nearly asphyxiated in a snowplow early today in Lynn when carbon monoxide fumes from a defective muffler, according to police, knocked both unconscious as they sat in the cab outside a Broad st., Lynn, restaurant.

Edward Curtin, 35, of Blakely st., and Norman Brandon, 37, of Thistle st., both Lynn, were clearing snow for the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. when they halted the plow at 3 a. m. for lunch. Two cruiser car patrolmen sensed their plight and rushed the pair to a hospital.

Green Proposes 45-Hour Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—AFL President William Green proposed today management and labor voluntarily set up a 45-hour work week on an overtime pay basis as a means of producing more goods and helping beat inflation.

The 74-year-old labor leader told the Senate banking committee that labor would consider the extra work hours if Congress would approve an effective means for halting the price spiral.

This would include most of the 10-point anti-inflation program recommended to Congress by President Truman, except standby authority to control wages, Green said.

Green suggested an extra hour of work a day. He estimated that 16 million workers now employed in manufacturing would provide an additional 8,000,000 manhours of production per day under his proposal.

Goat Gland Man's Downfall Recited

It required a staff of 35 in a partial Dr. Roy Tex estate to handle the 2000 letters sent daily to John Romulus Brinkley perhaps to most flamboyant medical charlatan America has ever known.

In the last generation he took advantage of man's neverending quest for rejuvenation and promoted a goat gland transplant for males. In many recent years he gradually to the fisher field of quackery.

The amazing story of Brinkley's long malpractice and his eventual downfall will be told in "The Great Rejuvenator," in Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, as another in the popular "Medical Horrors" series.

Truck Pickets Invade 4 States

Striking truckers of Local 25, AFL Teamsters' Union, today picketed terminals of six large Boston trucking firms in New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine and Rhode Island.

This new move, which follows immediately on the heels of charges, filed with the National Labor Relations Board, that employers have resorted to unfair practices, is designed to put pressure on the 400 members of the Employers' Group of Motor Freight Carriers.

Making the announcement, Union International Representative Lester Hunt said the firms involved were the M. & M.; Towel; Hemingway Brothers; St Johnsbury; H. P. Welch and Henry Jenkins companies. Hunt added that the picketing, carried out by men employed by the firms, would be peaceful.

Meanwhile both employers and union representatives are hopeful that early settlement may emerge as a result of a meeting scheduled to take place between both parties in the State House this afternoon.

Eire Troops Hunt Killers Of Dublin Police Chief

LONDON, Jan. 22 (INS)—Irish troops with fixed bayonets and Bren guns were reported to have sealed off the center of Dublin today in a search for unidentified gunmen who killed Police Supt. Gantley.

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail said troops joined the search after half-dressed gunmen clambered barefoot along rooftops and fought a revolver duel with police.

Letter From Mr. Hearst About Military Training

Los Angeles, January 19, 1948.

R. T. VAN ETTISCH,
naging Editor,
s Angeles Examiner,

EAR MR. VAN ETTISCH:

UR PAPERS are not doing enough to force the best and most complete Universal Military Service measures rough Congress.

The Swiss system is practically perfect nd has proved its value through the years peace it has brought to Switzerland in the idst of war-torn Europe.

We should urge the veterans to support he Swiss system and we should co-operate rgorously and effectively with the veterans n their policy.

In fact, we should support them and cooperate with them in every policy so obviously for the benefit of the nation which the veterans advocate.

Our editors should remember that the reason the conditions of the United States differ so drastically from the conditions of Europe is because the veterans fought, not only to win the war, but to keep the war out of the United States, and to save our country from war's destruction.

We owe all our benefits of the peace to the veterans.

We must always remember them.

We must always defend them from the designs of self-seeking politicians and protect them from the machinations of hostile powers.

In defending them, we are defending our country.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

A Sound Viewpoint

THE SENATE Committee on Foreign Relations has been exceedingly wise in consulting the sound viewpoint of Mr. Herbert Hoover on the scope and purposes of the Marshall Plan, and the whole country as well as the Congress will have a better understanding of the program in consequence of his statement.

While Mr. Hoover made it plain that he did not desire to be considered a critic of the plan or of any general proposition of European rehabilitation through American assistance, he gave short shrift to the idea that the Marshall program is an "all or nothing" formula for that purpose which the Congress must approve in its entirety or leave alone altogether.

"I should have liked to be able to give unqualified endorsement of the economic co-operation administration (Marshall Plan) as presented to the Congress," Mr. Hoover wrote to Chairman Vandenberg.

"I am compelled, however, by conscience to say that the plan as presented should have certain constructive modifications and more safeguards."

To begin with, said Mr. Hoover, it is a mistake to think that the sixteen nations listed as the proposed beneficiaries under the Marshall Plan comprise the whole list of beneficiaries of direct American relief, for Germany, Japan, China and Korea are already presenting us with "a situation which is at present an operation rathole to the extent of a billion and a half dollars for each year of charitable food from the United States to keep their people alive."

It is an equally serious mistake, he continued, to think that the initial expenditure of seven billion dollars proposed under the Marshall Plan is the whole expenditure contemplated, the actual expenditure suggested for foreign relief in the first fifteen months of the Marshall Plan being nearly nine billion dollars.

Mr. Hoover, as a former President of the United States and as an eminent and distinguished economist of world renown, speaks with authority on this vital subject that few of his contemporaries possess, and it is a laudable act of Congress to consult his opinion, and it is a providential asset to the American people that the informed and loyal counsel of this great and earnest American is being weighed against the ultimate decision of Congress.

His love enwrapped her as a robe
Which seemed by its supernal charm
To shield her from every poisoned probe
Of earthly pain and earthly harm.
The love he bore her lifted him into a bright, sweet atmosphere
That filled with beauty to the brim
The world beneath him, far and near.
And stained the clouds that draped its rim.
—J. G. HOLLAND.

WHAT IS THE MOST common three-name combination in the United States? I have always thought it to be Frederick James Smith. Maybe I am wrong. It could be John Joseph McCarthy. Anyway, that's what they think in Yonkers, which has five members of that name on its police force. Women having the same three names are rare. That is because of the intense feminine urge to be different. If a girl's parents bestow names upon her which she thinks ordinary, she changes them to suit herself. For example, a woman named Mary Jane Smith will change her name to Iris Sandra Smith or something like that.

INVENTORS: Bing Crosby's Foundation for Inventors continues very active. This helpful organization is really producing results in the matter of giving inventors a chance to win a bit of fame and fortune. A recent Crosby Foundation invention is a gadget known as a breath-o-lator. This is used to quickly eliminate what may be objectionable in the breath after the consumption of strong drink, onions, tobacco, etc. I imagine it can also be of benefit to those poor girls whose breath odor handicaps have resulted in their always being the bridesmaid but never the bride.

Bing Crosby

HORSES AND WOMEN: It is wonderful to have a wife who is a good cook. On the other hand, a matrimonial mate who is a cookery enthusiast can be very trying. That is because she is inclined to try out every recipe that appeals to her. She also delights in giving her imagination full play in the concoction of fancy dishes. It is extremely difficult for her spouse to persuade her to serve a simple dinner such as roast beef, peas, mashed potatoes, etc. The most fortunate husband is one having a wife who knows how to properly handle the cooking and serving of simple fare. Women should let their imagination and passion for the unusual run riot with dresses, hats, handbags and hair-dos, rather than with the food they serve their loving husbands.

CONTENTED COWS: Radios make contented cows. Farmers in Northern California have proven that. Radio-equipped barns have resulted in cows producing more milk. While the cows prefer musical programs, they appeared to enjoy the commercials when voiced by certain announcers. There are also non-musical programs which have the effect of putting the cows to sleep. Naturally, I am withholding the names of these programs but perhaps you can guess which ones they are.

PASSING BY: George McManus. Genial comic strip genius. Has been producing laughs with his "Bringing Up Father" strip for 36 years. It appears throughout the world in 672 newspapers in 27 languages. George, one of the country's greatest consumers of cigars, is the only man I know who smokes a cigar in the bathtub.

PLEASE NOTE: No player over six feet two inches in height is eligible to engage in the basketball competition of the Olympic Games. It was the Japs who brought this situation about. Before the war, the Japanese complained to the Olympic Games committee, that being naturally small in stature, they were too greatly handicapped in basketball games in which their opponents utilized so many extremely tall players. I have always claimed basketball teams should have classifications by height as boxers do by weight.

CHILDREN: Today one of the neighbor's children, a lad of about seven years of age, pointed a toy automatic at me and said: "Hands up! I'm a killer! This is a stick-up!" Perhaps I overestimate the danger of giving kids toy automatics as playthings. Still, I can't see any sense in it. I am extremely grateful to my father for giving me as Christmas presents baseballs, footballs, Louisville slugger bats, gloves, etc. This developed in me a love of athletics, which not only gave me much pleasure but enabled me to get a college education and no doubt contributed largely to the fine health I have enjoyed for many years.

MULES & MEN: "For real true love, love to devotion, the best age of man is from 45 to 70; up to that, men are generally given to mere flirting." So stated Anthony Trollope. Our Mules & Men experts are checking this claim.

"THAT refers to horse racing!"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1948, King Features Syndicate

AFTER ALL these years and after attending 15 of those national nominating conventions, I am still a rube about the Presidential politics of this our glorious old United States of A.

Westbrook Pegler

To anyone with an honest, naive mind, only two Republicans deserve consideration at this time, and they are Dewey and Taft, not necessarily in the order named.

Football coaches who find themselves rich in manpower have a way of saying that they are three deep or four deep at the ends or the tackles or wherever.

The Republicans are two deep for President and four or five deep for Vice-President. For Vice-President they have Stassen, Eisenhower, Vandenberg and Saltonstall.

NOW, OF COURSE, there is no law that says a line man can't ever play backfield. That is a custom, not a law.

Many a big dumb guard, combining a strong back with a weak mind, goes through three years on the varsity without ever getting a football in his hands except by some miracle when an opposition pass accidentally pops him in the belly and he keeps on going until he brains himself against the concrete end wall and revives to learn that he is a historic hero who ran 35 yards to the winning touchdown after a brilliant interception.

Under the laws of our great Republic, a guard may be promoted by the coach's whim and the exigencies (Boy!) of the situation.

Therefore, Stassen or Saltonstall or somebody else, could be nominated for the head of the Republican ticket this year.

BUT WHAT I AM saying is that they, or one of them, should be nominated for President only in case Dewey should drive off a bridge into some deep water in one of these blizzards and Taft, in whipping out his handkerchief to start a speech, should flip a gaudy, ruffled garter or a bra with rosettes on it smack into the center of table No. 1, at which we would find seated the conventional dignitaries.

Thus the two regular varsity bands would be ditched and there would be a scuffle along the bench for the honor of being the replacement.

In that case I guess I would kind of like Stassen, although I can't give very good reasons. I think he is still green.

Warren is a good man, but he strikes me as lazy. Strikes me as a lazy net fisherman.

I am a stick fisherman. Taft is a stick fisherman, too. When we go trouting we don't aim to settle for bull-heads or carp. I don't want a Republican President to be elected by undesirable votes and then find a lot of Republican Ickeses and Frances Perkinses and Morgenthauses messing around the shrine of this patriot's devotion.

WHETHER IN NEW YORK or Washington or wherever else, when citizens consult my political wisdom, they immediately start talking Eisenhower and Stassen, when everybody knows the two best candidates from any intelligent standpoint are Taft and Dewey.

What the devil is the matter here, anyway? Don't we want the best we have got for President? Is our system so intricate that we must deliberately turn down the two best men to take an emotional, sentimental, unseasoned political kid, meaning Stassen, or a lieutenant-colonel of the Regular Army whose reputation is still white as the driven snow only because we have an unwritten law against noting flaws in military heroes?

WE ALL DO KNOW this much, that Eisenhower, one way or another, stood for a rotten overload of draft-dodging majors and colonels in England who ought to have been toting muskets and packs, the worst of them from Hollywood and Broadway, of course, and that he and his one-way neck are largely responsible for the fact that Russia now owns a continental empire extending up to our own tissue paper line, including the Baltic, Poland, Berlin and the Balkans.

He and his one-way neck are largely responsible for a situation which during his presidential term might compel us Americans to fight a third war in Europe and God only knows where else, this time to liberate humanity from the infidel Muscovite.

I say, either Dewey or Taft would knock Truman's brains out. Knock him through the skylight. I say either one would make a fine President.

Yet people, even ostensible Republicans, go around babbling about Stassen and Eisenhower. They want second-best. What is this, anyway? Sabotage?

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22—Joan Fontaine stepped right out of "Mayerling" and right into "You Gotta Stay Happy," a romantic comedy based on the Robert Carson magazine story.

When I saw her at the Joan Bennett party, William Dozier told me she would start in May on a Rampart production, and he gave me the name of the picture, "You Gotta Stay Happy"- and I hope Joan does.

Joan Fontaine

She will have with her James Stewart and that, to my mind, is interesting casting. This will be the first time Joan and Jimmy have played together, although they are very old friends. Karl Tunberg, who is adapting the screen play, will produce, and a director will be chosen this week.

EVE ARDEN, who is such an outdoor enthusiast that she goes swimming these days, even when it's chilly, told me her Dachshund had paralyzed back legs, so she took him into the pool with her every day, and he is already better.

Eve told me she wants to go to New York to do a play, but I know the jobs are so plentiful for her that she doesn't get a chance. She is as good in sophisticated roles as Ina Claire was on the stage, and she has great admiration for Ina. What I started to say is that Eve plays the secretary in "One Touch of Venus," and that is pretty good for Producer Lester Cowan.

IT HAS BEEN rumored for a long time that Hal Roach and MGM were negotiating. But today the contract was actually signed, and Hal, who was with Leo the Lion for 14 years, goes back to make six pictures. He is very happy, because MGM was his happiest association.

I hear that his first story idea has to do with a circus, but this I get through the grapevine.

These features will be filmed at his own studio, which is in the neighborhood of MGM.

SAM WOOD, who directed Greer Garson in "Goodbye Mr. Chips," is one of the first big independent directors to tie himself up with a major studio. You'll see more independents follow suit.

Sam will again direct Greer, and his first assignment will be one of the three pictures set up for her—"The Saintly Miss Peters," "The Forsyte Saga" or the sequel to "Mrs. Miniver."

Greer will do all three of these after she finishes "Julia Misbehaves." That gives my friend Greer the promise of some good pictures both with Wood and with the selection of stories.

FRANCES GIFFORD, who had such a serious auto accident New Year's eve that her friends feared she might never act again, plays the queen of France in "The Three Musketeers."

It's true, she does have to have plastic surgery, but not the kind that everyone expected, because her face is healing very rapidly. Nowadays surgeons are so skillful in operating that after a few months you don't even see where the stitches are.

I am awfully glad Frances' pretty face is going to be just as pretty as ever.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: One of our well-known actors called Betty Hutton to say he was voting for her in "Perils of Pauline" for the Academy award, and said he, "You must be a dark horse. There's a great flurry started."

Betty was so excited at the thought that she might be nominated that she called the studio. "But," she said, "if I should, by any hook or crook, be elected I couldn't be there. That's the date my baby is due, March 5."

I still say there should be two awards, one for drama and one for comedy. At the moment, Rosalind Russell is going to be pretty hard to beat in "Mourning Becomes Electra."

ONE OF the best mothers in this town is Maureen O'Sullivan, who today had her fifth baby, a girl weighing nine pounds four ounces, at St. Vincent's Hospital.

She and Johnny Farrow, her director husband had hoped for a girl, for they had three boys and only one daughter, Mia De Lourdes.

The Farrow children are as so beautiful and I am very proud to say I am the godmother of their pretty little girl.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Richard Greene the Elgast actor who served during the war in his native country has left 20th Century-Fox Hemisphere for his release.

There is now talk that at MGM makes the Jolson sequel it will be with Al and show the later half of his life. That would please the fans if they can't have Larry Parks.

Cary Grant has to get out of his house by the first, and he says if he can't find a place to live he will go to Palm Springs or New York or somewhere else. Visiting.

Indignantly Shirley Temple denies she is getting out Shirley Temple dolls to coincide with the birth of her baby. She says there will be nothing commercial on this event.

Shirley Temple

Otto Preminger is back from Mexico, where he visited friends. He didn't get a divorce and he never files it with her in California.

Seldom have there been as many stars at any opening as there were at the "Cass Timberlane" preview. Merle Oberon wearing her famous emeralds, Annabella in pale pink satin, Lana Turner, the center of all eyes, in black.

There was a short of the John Tracy Clinic, showing the fine work the teachers do with handicapped children. Mrs. Spencer Tracy who has dedicated her life to the cause of deaf children won everybody's heart when she spoke.

The Humphrey Bogarts plan to go to Europe after they finish Key Largo, to join Mrs. Natalie Bacall Bogart's mother, who leaves the end of the month.

A wire from John McPartland says there has been widespread controversy on his Communistic articles which have attracted so much attention. As I told you there has been bidding going on for them for a movie.

Lux Parker and Rex Harrison arrive Friday on the Queen Elizabeth. Lux will accept an award in behalf of Milton Sperling from Parents Magazine for "My Girl Tisa" as the outstanding family picture for February.

From Chicago comes word it was Hollywood day in the Pump Room when Esther Williams and Lex Gage had luncheon, also Margaret Harper, Carmel Myers, Reggie Lenz, Henry Rogers, Kirk Douglas and the Sidney Strotzes. Sidney were going East soon. West.

Ray Montgomery who played Romeo to Shirley Temple's Juliet in "Bad Little Hagey Girl" has reconciled with his wife after a year's separation.

That's all today.

My Boston

By Alan Frazer

THE SNOW IS CAUSING SO MANY HEADACHES, it looks as if we'll all be punch-drunk by spring . . . A friend of ours has had a particularly bad break. He bought a new car. Right away it was stolen. He got it back, but the next day, while it was parked, somebody ripped off a fender and didn't leave his name. That was no sooner fixed than the snow caved in the garage roof. Damage to the car was $800. No insurance . . . But those patches of moisture that are spreading on the wallpaper are worrying thousands of home-owners . . . You can't collect storm insurance for seepage, even if your fire insurance policy has a storm, or wind clause. The National Board of Fire Underwriters has warned Boston insurance adjusters against paying such claims . . . The storm clauses specifically say the insurance companies are not liable for damage due to frost, cold weather, snowstorms, etc. . . . But if your damage becomes extensive, you might put in a claim, to have it on record, because some large real estate companies that own dwellings are reported planning to make a court test by suing the insurance companies. After all, it was probably the wind that lifted the shingles and left you with a leaky roof in the first place.

YOU CANNOT get a leakage clause added to the fire insurance policy on your house. But you can get a separate policy for water damage. This type. Your leak damage probably would cover the car, $1640. If you would stand the first $25 yourself you could get a years coverage on the balance for $5. Only a few companies write this sort of policy. First they'd inspect your roof. That's impossible now . . . Generally speaking seepage comes from the melting of the underlayer of snow on the roof, due to heat from the house . . . Insulated houses escape this, but in some cases there is action of heat has brought down that gutters and even part of the sides of the house . . . The water from the melting snow will find its way into your house through the smallest crevices. We've heard of a man who sheathed the edges of his roof with copper and covered this with wooden shingles. The wind doesn't lift wooden shingles as it does asphalt . . . But how the use of wooden shingles affects your insurance is something you should have to look into.

REP. JOE SYLVIA who had unsuccessfully run for Labor Day changed to the third Monday in September owns a hotel at Matthias Vineyard. Hotel men (and many others) would like a longer summer season. Musicale Attracts SOCIALITES were shod in sturdy boots of all descriptions at yesterday's Morning Musicale at the Hotel Statler. And some looked very comical around the feet in sharp contrast to the lavish mink coats and pretty hats that completed their outfits.

Jacques Thibaud, violinist, was guest artist at the fourth concert in the series that benefits the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. The foyer seemed like a travel bureau during intermission with so many conversations about plans for trips to glamorous winter resorts.

Mrs. Harrison Culver

Sally Reed, co-chairman of the debutante ushers with Dorothy Rackemann, had a row on with a close friend of her debutante days. Mrs. H Harrison Culver (Elizabeth Jenney). Mrs. Culver had just arrived from St Louis to visit for a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Jenney of Brookline.

Sally's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Loring Reed of Dedham will soon be packing their luggage for a trip to Arizona. Aside from possible trips to New York on business connected with the Vincent Club show Sally will not be doing any traveling during the next couple of months for she has a full time job as chairman of the Ushers.

MRS. EDWARD M GALLAGHER, JR. (Priscilla Phelan), came to the concert with her mother, Mrs. James J. Phelan of Beacon st. She looked very pretty in brown with touches of pale pink and said her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lyon (Patricia Phelan), will be off on a cruise to Jamaica next month. And that her other sister Mrs. Reid Jorgensen (Virginia Phelan) is living in Canton, China, where her husband is in the American Consulate. All three girls were active and popular in Boston society during their debutante days.

Mrs. Harry Hayward was beaming with news that she has a new granddaughter born to her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bernard de Bruyne of London, who are now at the sheep ranch in Patagonia, South America. The baby, Harriet Elizabeth, was born in Patagonia Jan 11 on her Grandmother Hayward's wedding anniversary. She is named for her aunt Mrs. Harriet Hayward Sanders of Boston.

Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin of the Musicales committee is going to Charleston, S. C., for a visit in February.

AFTER THE CONCERT Mrs. Thomas M. Lanman and a group, Mrs. Arthur G. Pendleton, dressed together in the Statler Terrace Room a factor to gather a party for Musicales subscribers. Mrs. John Filoon, who comes from Brockton for each concert, had a party with friends and relatives and plans to stay in town for the hockey game last night.

Mrs. James Leonard Mr. and Mrs. Neil Mrs. Robert F. Daley, Miss Louise Coburn, Mrs. W. Lloyd Aiken, Mrs. Rose C. M. P. Kennard, Miss Mary Eastaday Sherman, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Tavner Crowninshield and Mrs. Philip Cutler were others having luncheon dates in the Terrace Room.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—The baby gets his daily dose of fish oil and orange juice and milk . . . and as he gets older . . . the other brawn and brain developing and producing foods which carry him into upstanding adolescence and manhood. Vitamins are the constituents of many foods that strengthen the body tissues and prevent contraction of organic disease.

They are minerals substances vitally necessary to health. The comprehensive question of vitamins has not yet been fully medically researched and categorized . . . but the scientists do know what shortage things can happen to the body properly nourished and fed.

GET YOUR VITAMINS

The best way to get the needed vitamins is by eating the foods in which they are known to abound particularly for everyday . . . the all-around protective elements to produce a happier daily existence. So we don't want a lot of old . . . but just good healthy . . . diets . . . for vitamin study. The A B C

VITAMIN A is an all-important needed especially for strong clear eyes. It is found generously in green, leafy vegetables, particularly escarole. Also yellow foods such as carrots, corn, egg yolks and liver. It is a body-building resistant against disease.

Vitamin B makes for good strong, clean-cut muscles and general body building and its presence helps delay that tired feeling, ragged nerves and muscular aches and pains. Meats, especially pork, whole grain or restored cereals, enriched bread and yeast, bananas are rich in this vitamin.

Vitamin B-2 helps keep the skin, eyes and hair healthy. And to get this ready-made health we drink milk. Eat plenty of meat, peas, lima beans, eggs and green leafy vegetables.

Vitamin C is the curative vitamin . . . the one that makes for lovely complexion and lovely teeth. It is the one which helps to build good, strong teeth and gums and pep up the vitality. Good sources for it are in raw fruits and vegetables. Especially . . . ges and tomatoes.

Vitamin D . . . good for fine . . . may be found . . . sour watercress, . . . k, whole cereals and . . .

Vitamin G is for growth so . . . from meat, cereals, yeast, bananas and green leafy vegetables.

In the last generation knew what the present generation takes as cognizance of . . . would have strong, clear eyes . . . good muscles and nerves . . . healthy scalp and hair . . . lovely complexions and lovely teeth . . . and good straight bones.

DON'T PUNISH STOMACH

All life is a see-saw and it is up to us to balance that life. Two of the most important adjustments we must make in balancing life's precarious ups and downs are . . . first, our living habits . . . and secondly, our food intake. Life takes on a new sweetness when we replace faulty food habits with a sound, nutritional program.

So let's not punish our stomachs, undermine the efficiency of the body system with eating habits that have neither rhyme nor reason and only satisfy an uncontrolled craving.

But life should be mighty sweet for those whose determination and grit are seeing them through to a happy and successful conclusion of removing wedge wastes. Are you happy?

In tomorrow's Boston American we'll outline the caloric value of some of the popular desserts and sweets to show how spendthrift a person can get with non-essentials.

WHITE pique touches on dresses are the girlish props of the intensified accent on clothes. And for the accent on complexion smoothness . . . there's always a fine foundation lotion to give the skin the creamy softness it needs to make it as appealing as Jane Wyman's cast of countenance. For, like the new clothes, the complexion must change for the better, the softer, the smoother subtlety.

Godfather's Gift Goes to Child

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
My brother and his wife have asked me to be godfather to their baby daughter, who is to be christened in a few weeks. Please advise me if it is the right thing for me to give them a gift or a gift of money, for the christening. What do you suggest? M. E. D.

It is the baby, not the parents, to whom you give a gift at the time of the christening. You may, if you wish, give your godchild one of the customary gifts . . . a silver cup or mug or bowl, or a silver food set (small spoon, knife and fork or pusher) or a pair of baby pins of plain gold or delicate enamel. But much wiser and more practical would be a gift of money in some form.

For example, with even a small amount you might start a savings bank account in the name of your goddaughter . . . perhaps adding to this in money-gifts on her birthdays, graduations and at Christmastime. Or how about giving her a savings bond, in any denomination consistent with your means?

New Makeup Trend Colors Complement Fashion Tones

IF YOU'VE BEEN WATCHING the fashion pictures from the New York top collections, you have noticed a distinct change in general contour. Curly tresses have taken on a new smoothness . . . Barely showing under hats . . . Piled high for evening wear. Curves are once again in style . . . But the smooth, graceful, non-bulgy type . . . And sloping shoulder lines are replacing the broad, squared-off look of seasons past.

What about makeup? . . . There's a new trend here, too, inspired by new clothes colors. We'll see less of the bluish and purplish tones in lipstick and rouge, and more of the pure, fresh pinks and deep rose reds that complement the new fashion tones of beige, gray and mauve. Powder tints will be pinkish rather than the darker shades heretofore in vogue. And the hands, always a focal point of the well groomed woman, will be conspicuous by their lack of glaring color. The new polishes are much lighter and natural looking, but there are still lovely shades of pure red.

We suggest that you try this method of giving your skin the creamy-smoothness that provides an ideal base for makeup. Pour a scant half teaspoon of a noted foundation lotion into your palm, dip fingers into it and spread over your face from hairline well down on neck and throat, being careful to carry it up close to your eyes and over your eyelids. Use what is left, if any, as a skin softener on the backs of your hands.

Now blend the lotion into the skin of your face and neck with the fingertips. When almost dry, blot any excess with tissues. Over this, rub your cream rouge, then the powder and you'll enjoy lasting loveliness. R. M.

For the name of this stay-on makeup foundation lotion, phone Beauty Dept., LIBerty 2-4000 any day except Sunday, or write to Ruth Muggleebee, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Choose Your Accessories Wisely

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

MRS. S. had a very important luncheon engagement. She particularly wanted to make a fine impression, so the week before she bought the most stunning outfit she could find. Pirouetting before the showroom mirror, she knew she looked exactly right.

The morning of the luncheon she got up and looked out the window. Rain. She got dressed in her stunning new outfit. It still looked perfect. Then she began adding to it. First, a large umbrella. Next, her fur muff. Her library book was due; not much room, but she carried that, too. She had to take her pocketbook—a third arm would be handy, but like the most of us she only had two—well, it would just have to take its chances balanced in the bend of her elbow.

By the time Mrs. S. got loaded up you couldn't see the stunning new outfit for the equipment. Two accessories would have solved her dilemma: A muff that has a built-in pocketbook and a large, shoulder-strap carryall that holds everything from a fold-up umbrella to a library book.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

BAKED CHEESE is one of the favorite dishes for a meatless buffet dinner in Hollywood. It is so popular it rates a special utensil, one of those long, low Mexican pottery dishes, deep red brown in color and decorated with black and white figures. With plenty of baked cheese, brown, puffy and piping hot, nobody misses the more expensive meat.

For dessert, have a big steamed ginger pudding with fluffy hard sauce, and life becomes very, very pleasant indeed.

OLD-FASHIONED CUSTOM

Steamed puddings are a good old-fashioned custom, seldom encountered now-a-days. They are easy to mix. The only possible difficulty is the 2 hr. time needed for steaming. But this goes on when one is in and out of the kitchen, and it's a simple method of cooking, as no special supervision is needed. Just be sure the water doesn't cook out of the steaming kettle.

To steam puddings: Place a rack in the bottom of a good-sized kettle; or substitute several folds of newspaper. Place the pudding mold on this. Pour in boiling water to the depth of two-thirds of the pudding mold. Cover very closely, and boil steadily and continuously the time directed in the recipe.

It will be necessary to add more water at least once; this must always be boiling, as cold water will make the pudding fall because of the sudden change in temperature.

Recipes serve four

HOLLYWOOD BAKED CHEESE

Scald 3½ c. whole milk, or reconstituted dry skim milk; pour into 2 c. soft bread crumbs. Stir in 2 tbsp. butter or margarine, 1 tsp. salt, ½ tsp. paprika, and ¼ tsp. white pepper. Add 3 eggs, beaten light, and mixed with ½ lb. sharp, soft, American cheese put through the chopper. Stir in ½ tsp. baking powder. Transfer to a buttered, shallow 3-pt. pudding dish or open casserole; make the mixture about 1½ in. deep. Bake about 35 min. in a moderate oven, 350 F., or until firm in the center, and the pudding looks puffy and brown. Serve at once.

STEAMED GINGER PUDDING

Mix together 1½ c. flour, ½ c. grated stale bread crumbs, 2 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt and 2 tsp. powdered ginger. Stir in 1 c. fine chopped suet, 1 egg, beaten light, 1 c. molasses and ¾ c. milk. The mixture should drop easily from the spoon. Transfer to an oiled qt.-size mold; cover closely and steam 2 hrs. Serve with hard sauce mixed with a beaten egg white to make it fluffy.

FOR SUNDAY

Sunday meals should be something special. Not necessarily expensive, but very, very good; and braised lamb shanks qualify. The lemon juice used in cooking them is a California touch that makes the lamb more tender and delicate in flavor. When capers are added to the gravy, the dish has real style.

What are capers? They are the little round green flower-buds of the caper plant, which are pickled, bottled and sold in most stores. A bottle of capers will furnish enough to add a luxury touch to gravy, not only for lamb shanks, but for Irish chicken, pot roasted fish, and other savory dishes about to come into this column by way of the taste-test kitchen.

SUNDAY DINNER

Grapefruit Halves
Braised Lamb Shanks with Caper Gravy
Steamed Sweet Potatoes
Brussels Sprouts
Heated Rolls
Butter or Margarine
Chocolate Floating Island
Coffee or Tea Milk (Children)

BRAISED LAMB SHANKS

Remove all excess fat from 4 lamb shanks. Mix together 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 1 tsp. paprika; add 1 section peeled, sliced garlic and crush to a powder with the seasonings. Add 2 tbsp. flour. Thoroughly rub the lamb shanks all over with this mixture. Brown slowly in 2 tbsp. fat. Add 1½ c. hot water and 1 small bay leaf. Sprinkle with 1½ tbsp. grated lemon rind and add the juice of 2 lemons. Cover and simmer on top of the range or in the oven from 1½ to 2 hrs. Serve with gravy made from the liquid to which 2 tbsp. capers have been added.

To Pressure Cook: Prepare the lamb shanks as indicated; cook and brown all over. Place on a rack in the pressure cooker adding only ½ c. hot water together with the remaining ingredients; pressure cook at 15 lb. for 25 min.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

When preparing Brussels sprouts, they will cook through more quickly if you cut twice on the bottom like a cross, so the heat goes faster to the inside.

This Girl Just Looking For Plenty of Trouble

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I went out with a fellow for nine years and then he went away. This made me mad, so I got married. Now I am separated from my husband and waiting for my divorce to come through, and this other fellow wants me to marry him when I am free. I have a baby boy two months old, and this fellow said he would help me to take care of the baby. But he doesn't do very much and what he does he throws up to me. Besides this, he likes to flirt with other girls and just laughs at me when I object.

I have been hurt by him so many times, yet I love him so much that I can't get him off my mind. He is very jealous and if I even go to the movies he follows me because he is afraid I may be going with another fellow. He never keeps a job very long, either. I don't know what to make of a fellow like him. "TROUBLED"

Dear "Troubled":

Nothing that you tell me about this man gives me the faintest clue why you should love him as you say you do. On the contrary, everything you say makes me wonder why you don't have sense enough to put him out of your life and take care of your own baby, instead of expecting any help from him.

It seems to me you are very lucky that he has given you such a clear demonstration of the kind of man he is before you are free to marry him. If you are wise, you will put an end to this whole thing before that divorce comes through, and then stay away from him forever after. Marriage with him would be a failure. Do you want to add a second marital disaster to your first one?

SHE'S TALLER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 17 years old and have been going with a fellow who has asked me to go steady. I like him a lot, but he is at least five inches shorter than I am. Should I go steady or not? "UNDECIDED."

Dear "Undecided":

It is a very natural feeling for a girl to be self-conscious when she is considerably taller than her boy friend. But after all, does it actually matter so very much? People don't pick their friends for their height and weight, but because they are good companions with whom one can have fun. If you enjoy this lad's companionship, isn't that the important thing?

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

SOCIALITES APLENTY TURNED out one morning last week to see and hear Mrs. Dion Lucas, international culinary authority and graduate of the famous "Cordon Bleu" Cooking School of Paris. The occasion was the first of a series of cooking lectures and demonstrations for the benefit of the North Bennett Street Industrial School. Mrs. Lucas prepared this gorgeous dessert while we watched. As menu accompaniments there were: consomme Julienne, pot cheese biscuits and fish shashlick with hot piquant sauce.

NESSELRODE PIE

2 cups flour
¼ egg yolks
½ tbsp. sugar
½ tbsp. butter
Pinch salt

Put flour on board and make a well in the center. Drop in the egg yolks, then add sugar, salt and butter, and work with one hand to blend. (This leaves the other hand free to handle anything around the table, if necessary.) Then knead gently with heel of hand—not fingers. If a little dry, add small amount of water. Sprinkle a little flour on board and shape dough in a ball. Roll ½ inch thick into square shape—make it large enough to extend an inch beyond the pan. Fold dough over rolling pin and into square pan. Shape into pan and trim off edge by running rolling pin over top of pan. Shape waxed paper into pan (this keeps dough smooth). Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) on top shelf for 35 minutes. When cool fill with Rum Bavarian Cream.

RUM BAVARIAN CREAM

4 large eggs, or 5 small ones, separated
4 tbsp. granulated sugar
2 tbsp. gelatin
1¾ cups hot creamy milk
Whipped cream
2 tbsp. mixed chopped candied fruit, allowed to stand for a while in
2 or 3 tbsp. dark rum
½ cup coarsely grated sweet chocolate
Bread or graham cracker crumbs
Confectioners' sugar

Add granulated sugar to egg yolks and beat until very light and fluffy. Mix in dry gelatin and pour on hot milk. Stir this over the fire until thickened (must not boil.) When thickened, stir over ice until it begins to set. Then add stiffly beaten egg whites; 3 or 4 tbsp. whipped cream; candied fruit; and grated chocolate. Spread a few bread crumbs on the bottom of the baked shell when it is cool; fill the pan with this creamy mixture and sprinkle well with more coarsely grated chocolate. Dust with confectioners' sugar and decorate around the edge with whipped cream with a pastry tube. Leave in the refrigerator ½ hour before using.

INTRICACY OF DESIGN that loses none of the rhythm, symmetry and easy-to-wear look for which Maurice Rentner's designing is justly famous is skillfully pursued in this beige crepe dress and its newer silhouette look. Inserts of light navy blue crepe bands contrast strikingly . . . carrying the eye down to the over-sized pockets which follow the folds of the rich, spinning skirt. Here's spring moderation of the so-called "new look" silhouette at its best.

'Cass Timberlane' On Loew's Screens

"Cass Timberlane," Metro's Spencer Tracy-Lana Turner co-starring film version of Sinclair Lewis' best-selling novel, opens its local run on Loew's State and Orpheum screens tomorrow.

The story moves from its opening sequences of a typical courtroom day in the life of Judge Timberlane to his exciting courtship of the colorful, temperamental Jinny, the clashes and reconciliations of their married life, the death of their baby that might have held them together and Jinny's ultimate decision to run away with the dashing, persuasive Bradd. A dramatic automobile accident finally brings Jinny back to the judge who finds life without her unbearable.

Added features are "King-size Canary," a color cartoon; "Miracle in a Cornfield," a John Nesbitt Passing Parade short and the latest newsreels.

MIDWESTERN JUDGE and girl from "the wrong side of the tracks" are played by Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner in Metro's filmization of the Sinclair Lewis novel, "Cass Timberlane." It is to be seen on Loew's twin screens, beginning tomorrow.

Yiddish Theater Now in 28th Year

With a unity of purpose which has not allowed itself to be sidetracked from its original course set 28 years ago, the Yiddish Art Theater, under the leadership of its founder and director, Maurice Schwartz, is still the nation's foremost Jewish theater aggregation.

Despite many tempting offers from the English-speaking theater, the Yiddish Art Theater group has steadfastly refused to waver from its purpose . . . to present the finest examples of acting, directing and stagecraft in its native language.

'Shylock and His Daughter' starring Schwartz in the Ari Ion-Zahav drama, will be presented by the Yiddish Art Theater players at the Plymouth, beginning Tuesday, Feb. 17. Seven performances will be given.

'Doctor Social' Seats On Sale at Wilbur

Tickets are now on sale at the Plymouth box office for Harold Barnard's production of "Doctor Social," a new play by Joseph L. Estry, which opens a two-week engagement at that theater on Monday. Dean Jagger, Virginia Gilmore and Al Shean are featured in the Don Appel-directed drama.

HOPE HIT TOPS BILL

Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, in their very funny romantic comedy hit "Road To Rio," are luring Olympia and Scollay patrons presently. The co-feature is "Wife Wanted."

THE DEBORAH KERR-starring "Black Narcissus," the film concerning Anglican nuns which has had some cuts made in compliance with Catholic clergy protests, is due on the Exeter St. Theater screen Sunday. Kathleen Byron, Miss Kerr and David Farrar are seen here.

'Shoe Shine' in 5th Kenmore Week

"Shoe Shine,' the superb Italian film that has won unanimous acclaim from critics and public alike, continues at the Kenmore Theater for a fifth week.

A tropical drama "Shoe Shine" is concerned with the shattering problem of Europe's lost youth.

When the film was first released in Italy Msgr. John Patrick Carroll-Abbing, the youthful priest who is president of the medical commission in the national agency for the distribution of relief, set up a group of Italian Boystowns patterned after Fr. Flanagan's internationally contracted Boystown. There has since been a 40 per cent decrease in juvenile delinquency.

Clay Wants Boost In Food for Reich

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (INS) —Gen. Lucius Clay, American occupation chief in Germany, arrived in Washington today and declared that Communists are taking full advantage of the Reich food shortage.

Clay, who flew from Germany for Army consultations and Congressional committee appearances, said he would seek a boost in food shipments to the U. S. occupation zone.

The general said he was not worried by the Communist tactics.

Hub Classmates In $11,000 Finals

Two classmates at Boston Latin School were among 40 high school seniors from 16 states selected today to compete for $11,000 in scholarships in the seventh annual nation-wide talent search sponsored by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

The Boston youths are David Andrew Yphantis, 17, of Westland ave., Back Bay, and Stanley Harris Zisk, 16, of Geneva ave., Dorchester.

Selected in tests of 3161 high school seniors for their "science potential," the 40 finalists, eight of them girls, go to New York, all expensese paid, for five days beginning Feb. 27, for selection of the winners.

DUCHESS EXPECTS BABY

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Duke of Alba, Spanish grandee, is going to become a grandfather. His daughter, the Duchess of Montoro, and her husband, married last October, are due here tomorrow from a honeymoon in the United States.

Chaplin's Son Fined $50 On Drunkenness Charge

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 22 (INS)—A 10-day suspended sentence, a $50 fine and 90 days probation was the sentence handed out to Charles Spencer Chaplin, Jr., son of the film comedian, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness.

The youth also was ordered by Judge Henry Draeger to refrain from drinking during the probation period.

Adlow Books Bought For Entire Police Force

Max Shoolman, Ivy st., Brookline, prominent philanthropist and real estate magnate, today presented to Police Comr. Thomas J. Sullivan the first of 2400 copies of Judge Elijah Adlow's book, "Policemen and People," to be distributed to every member of the force.

The copies were bought for the department by Shoolman, whose gifts to the public and to charitable funds have made him one of the city's true humanitarians.

Leahy Won't Accept Detroit's $25,000 Offer

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE DETROIT PRO FOOTBALL Lions are yoohooing sweetheart calls to Notre Dame Frank Leahy and offering him a five-year treaty at $25000 per annum, or 15 Gs more than he draws at South Bend. That's important moolah. Yet the pro Lions have as much chance of bagging Leahy as I have of winning a popularity poll at Haravrd.

And why? Because Leahy is (1) among the most mercenary, cash conscious coaches now extant and (2) his current income sums up to $40000, what with coaching, endorsements, radioratory, book royalties and newspaper articles. Frank has a beagle's nose for a buck and I wish him a strong tailwind in his financial ventures because he is in a collapsible business where he has to get it while he is UP, because he may come DOWN any minute.

They Censor Their Own Stuff

I HAVE BEEN AN earnest reader of Leahy's writings because, though he doesn't write long or say much, at least he does peck out his own ideas at considerable labor and probably earns his hire. There is so little Leahy can write without offending the proprieties of his job, that he has developed into a clever composer of inanities who can dodge through a broken field of type without touching a fact.

I was talking with a nearby college athletic director not so long since about letting his varsity coach write a series of signed newspaper stories and he said, doubtfully, "I'll have to talk to him first, because he must not criticize his own players and I don't want him to praise them either. Then, too, he mustn't say too much about our opponents, or analyze either ours or their style of play." Which covered the subject from aardvark to zymergy, except, perhaps for fictional, or creative writing.

I say I am a patient reader of this type of article because I am ever hopeful that one of the boys will let his typewriter slip and utter a caustic or critical observation such as I have often heard them make orally, like the time when Leahy was coaching at B. C. and asked me if I had a garden. I said "Yes! Why?" and he replied, "Well, if you need any fertilizer I have a couple of big tackles and a fullback who are dead on their feet." But, though Leahy writes for the newspapers his comments are quite polite and salted with such things as the local players and coaches like to paste in their albums.

I am still waiting, for instance, to [illegible] what I [illegible] Emil Sitko said but it appeared the kid [illegible] and quit [illegible] would have ruled [illegible] But I [illegible] never happen, especially as I remember Ted Husing, the old NBC sports announcer, once being tossed out of the Harvard Stadium for saying [illegible] the play of Brick Wood, the Crimson's qb was [illegible] a filthy word in any language. And that one little adjective created a commotion which died down only when Husing offered a profuse apology and promised to cease the [illegible] from then on. [illegible] to show [illegible] football [illegible]

Can't Trust a "Ghost"

SO THAT IS ONE REASON why Leahy and his literary brethren write their own stuff. They don't dare to trust a "ghost's" imagination, though there are any [illegible] who would be happy to pick up and [illegible] 15 per cent of the gross for [illegible] their essays. Indeed there are many ghosting establishments which will write you a sports [illegible] topic or prepare a novel under your name, a fakery widely practiced in Washington where statesmen seldom see the inside of their address before [illegible] them in public. But, where the statesman knows little or nothing about the subject of his speech, the football men, like Leahy, know more about their topic than any ghost, even though they might [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Crusaders' Hoop Win Establishes Game in Hub

By JACK CONWAY

THE BASKETS SCORED by "Doggy" Julian's Holy Cross five against Rhode Island State were like nuggets of gold for the Boston Garden. The 76 to 49 victory for the Worcester collegians meant more than the result of an ordinary top basketball attraction. The sell-out crowd of 13,900 was the strongest argument that could be advanced as proof basketball has finally been accepted as a major sport by the people of Boston and New England.

Basketball has had a difficult time gaining public backing in Boston. Walter Brown has had a great deal of explaining to do to his directors, as he has spent thousands of dollars to develop the game here.

Brown has argued that a sport that draws sell-out crowds in the New York Garden would also do well here. He insisted he would carry on with basketball until the game clicked, even if he had to show teams before empty seats.

It never did become quite as bad as that, but basketball did receive the frost from sports fans until Holy Cross began to win games in impressive style. Various schoolboy tournaments also did well, but the run-of-the-mill court offerings failed to get the public enthusiastic.

Before the college game had been properly sold to the public, the Celtics established their home at the Garden. It was necessary for Brown to act at that time or Boston would not have received a professional franchise. At times when the gate receipts were small and the costs of maintaining a team were steadily increasing, Brown probably wished he had not shown so much confidence in the ultimate success of a professional club in Boston.

College Stars Will Help Celtics Click

THE CELTICS are still deep in the red, but they will be accepted in time just like the college sport has. This will happen when college stars like Cousy, Kaftan, Mullaney, Hole and Goodwin have graduated and gone in for professional basketball.

Professional football had its troubles in the early days of the sport, and fortunes were lost by various promoters before the game was accepted by the public. A winning club is the best cure-all in football or basketball. Ted Collins, owner of the Yanks, and Walter Brown will find this out.

Collins has lost $300,000 during the time he has been promoting professional football in Boston. The Yanks showed flashes of greatness in a couple of their games during the past season, and with added player strength they should improve next fall and not be such a strain on Ted Collins' bankroll.

Holy Cross to Play Georgetown Feb. 3

THE GARDEN will capture some of the nuggets of gold this season that were knocked loose by the Holy Cross win over Rhode Island State. I could not have blamed the Garden management if it had been secretly rooting for a Holy Cross victory over Rhode Island.

Apart from the fact Julian's team gave the Garden full support in its program to aid basketball, the Worcester outfit is booked for five more Boston games this season. Georgetown will battle Holy Cross at the Garden on Feb. 3, Temple on Feb. 10, Brown on March 1 and Colgate on March 9.

Holy Cross will play Boston College at the Arena on Feb. 17.

Holy Cross will also increase interest in other college games that will be played in Boston. This enthusiasm may also engulf the Celtics, and cause a few extra nuggets to fall into the cash till when they make home appearances.

If one likes to cheer and yell, basketball gives one more opportunities to do so than he can get from other sports. The public likes the home run in baseball, the knockout in boxing and scoring in hockey and basketball.

As Holy Cross won from Rhode Island State, the more rabid among the fans had to keep exploding vocally with the rapidity of sputtering bullets from the mouth of a machinegun.

Basketball should also prove an interesting pastime for racegoers during the winter months. If they wish, they can find folks who will dispute the probable result of the game with them. They can also shiek "foul" much as they frequently do when one of their favorite nags is beaten in a close finish at Suffolk Downs.

Safety Valve

DOCTORS WILL tell you that people who attend sports events and who make a nuisance of themselves yelling "foul" and condemning everything they do not approve of, never suffer from nervous breakdowns. Those persons seated near them may end up in a hospital from nervous shock, but the loud-mouthed individuals release all of their surplus energy as they root frantically.

Gallinger Takes His Rightful Spot

By BILL GRIMES

Until he came into his own last night, Don Gallinger hadn't been able to get off on the right foot in a home game this season. For some reason, Gallinger, who still is only a kid, got the idea early this season that the fans were on him. Unfortunately he had "rabbit ears," so he hears every unfavorable remark that comes from the "wolves." As a result, he was unable to show to advantage at home.

"Dit" Clapper has told me many times since the start of this NHL campaign that Gallinger has been a standout on the road. He must have been, for now he's trailing Woody Dumart, the Bruins' top point-getter, by one point.

Don Gallinger

Gallinger could not have picked a better time to put on his one-man show than last night. The win was a real payoff. With the Maple Leaf leading, 1 to 0, and about a half minute to go in the first period, "Gally" wrestled the puck away from Wild Bill Ezinicki on the back boards to the right of the Toronto nets, raced around behind the cage and hooked the puck into the strings for the tying goal. It was as clever a feat as has been seen in the Garden this winter.

Then, in the final chapter, Gallinger scored again, aided and abetted by Milt Schmidt and Wally Wilson. That goal was "bingo," for it gave the Bruins a well deserved 2 to 1 victory over the champions.

Due to Gallinger's goals, the Bruins went back into fourth place, for the Blackhawks chalked up their first victory of the season over Les Canadiens in Chicago. The Bruins also gained a full game on the third place Rangers.

It was apparent from the start that there wasn't going to be many goals scored. So it looked bad for the Bruins when Syl Apps counted shortly after half-time in the second stanza. The Bruins had passed up so many scoring opportunities prior to Apps' goal that it looked like one of those nights when they couldn't shoot a pea past "Turk" Broda, who made saves on shots he didn't even see.

Late in the first canto, the Bruins peppered Broda from all angles for almost a full minute but to no avail.

Gallinger tied it with 40 seconds to go in the second stanza.

There wasn't much action during the first ten minutes of the third period. Apparently, both clubs were playing it safe. But when "Teeter" Kennedy drew a penalty for high sticking "Sandy" Sandford, the Bruins opened up the throttle. Before the exiled Leaf returned, Gallinger came through with what turned out to be the deciding tally.

Bruins Oppose Reserve Clause Elimination

Like the baseball players, the hockey players are opposed to the elimination of the reserve clause from their contracts. So Col. Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, General Manager Art Ross of the Bruins and Judge A. B. Casson, club attorney, attended today's meeting at the State House on the reserve clause bill.

The Bruins discussed the bill at their annual mid-winter meeting yesterday afternoon and agreed that if the proposed bill becomes a law in this state it would be harmful to them.

Pres. Weston W. Adams had movies taken of last night's game. Although the movie-man, who was set up at the west end of the Garden, must have been too far away to get the action at the Toronto end in the first period, he should have gotten some fine shots while the Maple Leafs were pressing to tie the count at the end of the game.

The first time that he spotted Bill Barilko, who put him out of action for more than six weeks, Milt Schmidt took after him and smacked the Toronto defenseman with a resounding elbow check. "Schmiddy" sat out the next two minutes with Penalty Timer Ed Dagnino . . . The Constantine Falkland Georges Smythe Club, about 30 strong, who came here to root the Maple Leafs to victory, were very much disappointed over the outcome. It has been almost three years since Toronto has beaten the Bruins here—March 6, 1945.

The Jordan Marsh awards went to Don Gallinger, Fernie Flaman and "Sandy" Sandford and the fans in Section 14 who made the C. F. Adams selections picked Gallinger, Flaman and Schmidt, who nosed out Sandford . . . Coach Clarence "Hap" Day of the Leafs told this writer that his players tell him that Clare Martin of the Bruins hands out a stiffer body check than Kenney Reardon.

Pat Egan was late arriving at the Garden. He had a "flat" coming in and stated that he was lucky that he wasn't drowned . . . As usual, the Bruins had plenty of trouble getting the puck out of their own zone while shorthanded. On the other hand, the Leafs succeeded in clearing the disc down the ice when they were under-manned . . . GRIMES.

Pics Play Aces On Garden Ice

Determined to keep their winning streak on Boston Garden ice, the Olympics, with newcomer Ken Partis in their line-up, meet "Punch" Imlach and his tricky Quebec Aces at the Garden tonight.

So far this season the Olympics have played 13 games at the North Station rink and have won nine and tied one.

After tonight's game, the Pics are guests at Baltimore Saturday night where they will meet the Eastern League leaders before moving back into Boston Garden Sunday for an afternoon's tussle with George Boucher's smooth-skating Ottawa Senators.

Last Chance to Enter Silver Skates Derby

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Midnight's the deadline.

The entry box for the Silver Skates Derby will close tight tonight at midnight. Any entry blank postmarked after midnight will be rejected by the Silver Skates Derby entry committee. The Derby, greatest of all speed skating championships, will be held at Boston Garden Sunday afternoon Feb. 1.

There is no entry fee for the 13th annual Record-American-Advertiser speed skating classic. It is the great FREE ice skating championship of the nation. Derby champions are held in the highest esteem throughout ice centers of the country.

Just clip the entry coupon from today's paper and get it into the mail immediately.

Last year the Derby committee sent back over 50 entry blanks because they were postmarked too late. Don't be shut out. Enter now. It's your last chance.

Interest in this 13th annual ice classic has reached an all-time high. The entry committee is still tabulating ballots. Yesterday's mail alone brought 72 entry blanks. The former high for the Derby was 625 skaters.

The 1948 show will top anything ever offered Derby fans. Audrey Planty, English skating champion, due to arrive in New York this morning aboard the Queen Elizabeth, is having her fill of the high pitching seas. The ship is a whole day late from Southampton and will not be in dock until tomorrow at noon.

Young 11-year-old Donald O'Hora of Charles st., Boston, is one of the latest entries in the midget Derby. Donald is a member of the Lincoln Lake Skating Club and promises to pour on the heat in that midget division.

Recent entries are from: John E. Wren, 11, Cambridge; Joseph Lyons, 13, Foster st., Brighton; Dorothy Dykens, 10, Park st., Somerville; Lorette Haley, 10, Park st., Medford; Donald Haley, 8, Medford; Ruth Haley, 7, Park st., Medford; John McGrath, 15, Allen st., Boston; Thomas A. 18 Clubs Represented In Foley Memorial Races

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

At least 18 ski clubs will be represented in the third annual Walter Foley Memorial Slalom races, sponsored by the American-Record-Advertiser, on Locke's Slope, Amesbury, Saturday and Sunday. Of course, the two trophies and four silver medals, awarded in both the men's and women's race, are given for individual performances, but scores of members of skiing outfits hope that their colors will flash through the gates in front.

Since the events are held to honor the memory of Walter "Tim" Foley, of Malden, a former staff artist and skier, who was killed in action on Guadalcanal, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Foley, his parents, together with members of the immediate family and friends, will be present at the races. The group has chartered a bus for the occasion.

The women's slalom will start at 11:00 a. m., Saturday, and there will be two runs. Entries are free; they will be accepted at the warming hut on Locke's Slope, until 10 o'clock . . . Entries for the men's slalom close today, the race commencing at 10.00 a. m., on the Sabbath.

Both courses will be set by Edward Gould, Jr., pres., of the Amesbury Snowflake Ski Club, aiding with all details.

Here are some entries just received: Katharine Coit, White Mountain Ski Runners; Richard Bliss, Wakefield; Dick Preston, Lynnfield; Harland Radcliffe, Greenwood; Harvey Perry, Lynnfield Ctr.; Ralph Burg, W. Somerville; Robert Giles, Dallas, Tex.; William Warnecke, George Varney, and Bob Lilljedahl, of the Teneriffe Sports Club, Milton, N. H. The latter placed high up last year.

QUICK CHRISTIES: All skiers interested in taking the exam for certification as a U. S. E. A. S. A. approved amateur instructor contact Ralph V. White, care of the Ski Shop, 22 Main st., Morningdale, Boylston, Mass.

This writer is thoroughly disgusted with Mr. Avery Brundage —and most of the American Olympic Committee. The majority of the gentlemen—nonskiers—voted to back Mr. Brundage's absurd stand of cancelling the skiing, skating and bobsled events at St. Moritz, Switzerland, if this Olympic hockey team squabble doesn't meet their approval. Why penalize the other athletes, Mr. Brundage? The solution is simple; merely call off the hockey games.

Celtics Play In Philadelphia

The Boston Celtics are blessed with another golden opportunity as they take on the Philadelphia Warriors in a Basketball Association of America contest tonight in the Quaker City.

A win over the Warriors, a team they have already beaten three times in a row, would put the locals on top of the eastern sector.

Following tonight's contest, the Celts return to the Boston Garden Friday night to meet the New York Knickerbockers who were knocked off the roof by the Warriors the other night and who now share the runner-up berth with the Hub quintet.

The scoring duel between big Ed Sadowski and Joe Fulks of the Warriors will again be resumed. Since their last meeting, the Boston "Strong Boy" has dropped to third place in the scoring race, relinquishing his spot behind Fulks to Max Zaslofsky of the Chicago Stags.

Friday's preliminary game brings together North Quincy High and New Bedford.

Voyles Grid Dodgers Coach, Conerly Passes Up $100,000

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22 (AP)—Brooklyn's football Dodgers had a new head coach today, Carl Voyles, former mentor at Auburn—and boss Branch Rickey served notice his boys would be tough in the All-America Conference next fall.

"We haven't come into the game to be pushed out," declared Rickey, who recently added the professional grid team to his baseball enterprises.

"We don't have a god team yet. We're out for good players and we'll get them."

Just by way of showing the extent the Dodgers would go, the Brooklyn executive said the club had offered a $100,000 contract to Charley Conerly, Mississippi's passing ace, and Conerly had turned it down.

"He is going to play with the Giants," Rickey added. "I think he is under a commitment in which he has no choice."

Voyles, who left Auburn at the end of the 1947 season after four years, received a one-year contract as coaching successor to Cliff Battles, who was swept out in the Dodger turnover.

Simultaneously with the announcement of Voyles' signing came word that Earl M. Brown, coach of Canisius College, Buffalo, had been named to the vacated Auburn post.

Voyles announced he would select three assistant coaches. He said he preferred the T-formation and the single wing as a system but wouldn't know which he would install until he had a chance to look over his material.

Rickey at his press conference discussed his new undertaking frankly.

"We're not in the AAC just to exist," he commented. "We have a lot of faith in the conference."

Speaking of the rival National League's rejection of a proposed joint draft with the All-America, he said: "How good business men want to continue this so-called war is more than I can understand. But if it's war they (the Natoinal League) want we're ready to give it to them."

On the Conerly deal, Rickey said the Dodgers had offered the Mississippi star $20,000 a year for four years and a $20,000 bonus—an offer "the likes of which I've never made a baseball player in my life."

The Dodgers had draft rights to Conerly. The Giants this week obtained National League draft rights to college football's top passer in a deal with the Washington Redskins.

In Memphis, Conerly said he had received no such offer from the Dodgers. He said he had been approached by Wid Matthews, a scout for the Brooklyn Club, and had told the scout he preferred playing with the New York Giants.

The Giants' secretary and vice president, Wellington Mara, said his club had not signed Conerly yet and would wait until after the Mississippi baseball season this spring to approach him.

"We don't pay money like that Mr. Rickey is talking about," he added.

Weatherman Says 'More Snow Due'

STORY ON PAGE 2

Crushed Under Snow—Neighbors attempt to salvage restaurant equipment from the Rainbow dine and dance spot in Wilmington after the structure had collapsed under the combined weight of snow and rain on the roof. The restaurant had been recently renovated. Damage was estimated at $20,000. It was one of several places in this area to collapse under the tremendous weight of snow.

Flooded

William J. Carney uses a broom in attempt to hold back water from his home on Avenue B, Camp McKay Housing Project, South Boston. Fast melting snow caused many flood conditions in the area. Transportation lines were crippled and vehicular traffic made hazardous by the slush and rising waters.

Collapsed

Rain-soaked accumulation of snow atop this Putnam ave., Cambridge, warehouse proved too much for the structure to hold. The roof caved in. No one was injured in the building which was filled with building supplies.
